New Youth Theatre Project seeks Young Performers

In an exciting new theatre project that will employ the talents of young people in Perth, Burning Passions Theatre (the parent company of the Classic Theatre Festival), will soon be holding auditions for Listen Up, Perth!, a play that will be devised and written by and about the challenges faced by young people in a rural setting. Working with the Festival's Artistic Producer, Laurel Smith, youth aged 14-25 will have a chance to discuss issues ranging from age discrimination and abuse, to poverty and addictions in a safe setting, developing themes and stories that will then become a play that will be performed in Perth and a possible presentation at a national gathering of youth centres in Ottawa later this spring...

Save the Date for Swing into Spring

Swing into Spring on Saturday, May 2 with a full evening of live big band music, dance lessons, a silent auction, and more. You'll enjoy tunes from the 1930s to the 1960s performed by the much-loved 16-piece Big Band, Standing Room Only... [\[more\]](#)
